Two weeks 'till Thanksgiving.

Houses are in great demand.

Hor rig killing time close at hand.

Get to figuring on your Xmas presents.

The turkey crop is not so short, after all.

The town clock is worn out and unreliable.

Lots of vacant houses on the Clute. Alas, too bad.

Cooks are scarce, and some of them as mean as the devil.

The chain gang cleaned up the Park Saturday, a much needed job.

The quail crop is short. Many were slaughtered before the law was out.

Dr. Blaney, of Frankfort, preached at the Presbyterian church Sunday.

There is much typhoid fever in the county. The long drouth has caused a great deal of sickness.

For the first time in its history, the Public Square was swept Monday, every particle of dirt being removed. Good.

Some pretty flowers are being grown at the Lancaster green houses. Mr. Christman is an expert florist and has everything right up to date.

Our good friend, Henry Burdett sent The Record a tremendous possum and a sack of sweet potatoes. Now make you think we didn't live while they lasted.

The Record's faithful engineer, Carey Mullins, has moved to Lexington, where he is running an eating house. He ran the engine in this office for fifteen years, and we have never had a more honest or faithful employee.

Some more coons were caught in devilment Saturday night, and Judge Armstrong dosed out justice with a liberal hand Monday morning. Verily the way of the transgressor is hard in Lancaster.

Big Fire Near Town.

Monday afternoon, the slaughter pens of Mr. T. S. Elkin, on the new Danville pike, caught fire, and before the flames were extinguished they had burned the pens and destroyed the stable, coal house and other property making a heavy loss for the clever gentleman. It was with the greatest difficulty that the residence was saved, as the property is outside the town limits and could not be reached by the fire hose. Some hogs, hides, tallow and other property were consumed, making the loss reach about $600 with only $300 insurance.

Buried in Lancaster.

The remains of Milt Estes, who was killed by young Kennedy, at Crab Orchard last week, were interred in the Lancaster Cemetery Thursday. The Odd Fellows, of which he was an enthusiastic member, had charge of the burial. Many of the local members joined with the Crab Orchard lodge in paying the last sad tribute to the deceased. Mr. Estes was a hard-working man, and had many friends who deeply deplore his death. As the Lincoln county jury is in session, Mr. Kennedy's case will likely be looked into by that body and an indictment returned in a few days.

Peculiar Experience.

The other day, Mr. Jas. Hill, who lives on Water street, was setting out raspberry bushes, the end of a row coming near an old well. He dug the last hole, poured in some water, placed the plant and was tampering with his foot when the earth gave way in a space about two feet across and Mr. Hill fell into the hole until he reached shoulder depth, his arms being outstretched. This checked his course until assistance arrived. It proved that a stream of water, emptying into the well, ran directly under the spot where Mr. Hill was working, and had gradually washed away the dirt thereunder. Had his arms failed to check him, he would have been killed, as the hole was many feet over his head. It is safe to say that if any raspberries, or anything else, grow in that vicinity, someone beside Mr. Hill will have to plant them.

Let Him Move On.

Occasionally one will hear the remark, "I wish I was out of this town," and then one feels like saying, "I wish you were," for the man who stands on the street corners chewing and spitting, telling obscene stories, cursing the town, finding fault with his grand mother because she was a woman, claiming the merchants are a lot of thieves, that the lawyers and newspaper men would skin a man to a flint, and a whole lot more, is a nuisance and an abomination. Anyone pestered with one or more such worthies would be justified in exercising cowhide authority on the bosom of their pants. No one is obliged to live where he is not suited. If one hasn't an encouraging word for the business enterprise and institutions of his town he should shut up and "go way back and sit down." If things don't suit you, move on to where they will. A growler and sorehead in a town is an enterpriser killer every time.

Mr. Oscar Parks, son-in-law of Mrs. F. Brown, of this city, died at his home in Middleboro last week, and was buried in the Richmond cemetery.

Advertising Sale Continues.

The Ladies Aid Society will continue the Advertising Sale, at E. W. Harris' store, next Saturday. Some fine articles for sale cheap. Cakes, salads, etc., for sale.

U. D. C. Officers.

The U. D. C. held their regular meeting last Friday with Mrs. Mattie Frisbie. The following new officers were: Mrs. J. A. Royston, president; Mrs. Alex. Doty, vice president; Mrs. Fannie Farra, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Mattie Frisbie, treasurer; Mrs. B. F. Hudson, historian; Miss Mary Doty, recording secretary.

Will Build a Beauty.

Haselden Bros. are receiving the material for the handsome new store room they will build in connection with their present house. It will be of pressed, colored brick, of pretty design and up-to-date in every respect. The new building will be thrown together with the present one, and, as stated in recent issue of The Record, the Messrs. Haselden will add a wholesale department to their business. They are hustlers, and that they will meet with the greatest success there is no the slightest doubt. Such hustlers are the kind who build up a town. Pity that more Lancaster people do not invest their money at home.

Fine Enterprise.

Lancaster has one of the best florists in the state in Mr. John Christman, who has erected large, up-to-date green houses on Richmond street, near the rail road crossing. He has quite a number of growing flowers, and many potted plants which he sells at the very lowest prices. He is storing a great many flowers for the people, which is a great convenience for them. He has the houses in perfect running order now, and invites the public to call and see them. This is an enterprise long needed in Lancaster, and the people should show their appreciation by giving Mr. Christman their patronage. He is prepared to furnish designs of all kinds on shortest notice.

A Loss to Lancaster.

It is with great regret that The Record announces the determination of Dr. G. Chris Faris to leave Lancaster and locate in the West. For some time Dr. Faris has been in poor health, his physicians have advised a change of climate. He will leave in a few weeks for Arizona, and will give up the practice of his profession for a year. Dr. Faris located in Lancaster several years ago, and has established a lucrative practice. He is one of the best dentists in the state, a fine gentleman and a good citizen in every way. He has a legion of friends here who trust that he will soon recover his health and return to Lancaster. He had commenced building a cozy residence on Richmond street which he will complete and either sell or rent before leaving.

Bonds Fail To Carry.

The official count showed that the proposition to put the court house in decent shape had failed to pass, and the chances are the old hull will be allowed to rot down, or kill someone and the taxpayers be made to pay many thousand dollars in damages. While the building is all right from outside appearances, yet the interior is in a dilapidated and unsafe condition. Had those who voted against the proposition gone through the building, examined the dangerous cupola and the unsafe vaults, we are satisfied the bonds would have carried by an overwhelming majority. However, we have a fiscal court composed of gentlemen who will do all in their power to remedy the trouble, and they can be counted upon to do the right thing every time, so if there is any way possible by which the house can be patched, they will see that it is done. Those familiar with the unsafe and unhealthy condition of the building regret very much that the vote was against making a first-class building.

The Turkey Crop.

The Lexington Leader says: "According to advices received by local poultry dealers, the crop of turkeys this year will be a very large one. Dealers are now receiving turkeys weighing from twelve to fifteen pounds apiece as compared with turkeys weighing seven to ten pounds last year. Eastern speculators who played havoc with the market last year were taught a severe lesson, and they will keep their hands off this season. Last year these interests secured options on the bulk of the turkey crop in October for delivery during November and December. Realizing that they would not receive the exorbitant price they had looked for, they failed to take up their options. As a result the farmers were left with a big supply of turkeys on hand, which they were compelled to sell at very low figures. This year, however, the farmers are pledged to sell direct to the consumers, and take the open market price. Present prices of fourteen cents a pound on foot and twenty cents dressed will probably prevail during the Thanksgiving holidays. Other poultry will also be plentiful. Geese have already made their appearance, and heavy receipts are looked for later. Old hens and spring chickens are in liberal supply, and prices are reasonable."

Go to the court house tonight. (Friday) and hear the Armenian tell of the great massacre of his people. He was there.

Rev. C. H. Garrison, pastor of the Danville Christian church, was taken suddenly ill, suffering from hemorrhages of the lungs, and has been forced to take an indefinite leave from his church.

Eld. F. M. Tindler's subject for next Sunday morning will be Kentucky Missions. At night he will speak upon one of the greatest curses of the day—gambling. Evening service begins at 7:15.

Prof. Mannix was called to Charlestown, Indiana, Wednesday, by the death of his brother. He will return in a few days to resume his duties at the Graded school. During his absence, Rev. C. S. Ellis is conducting the school in the most satisfactory manner.

Fanning, the great Irish temperance lecturer on his recent visit to Lancaster will be delighted to know that he will come again on Tuesday, the 27th, and deliver another lecture in the Presbyterian church that night. He will be greeted by a large audience, as he is one of the best in the country, and you should not fail to hear him. Lancaster, Ky., November 16, 1906

The United States has not only the most highly intelligent fighting force in the world, but it is the best armed, according to the report of Brig. Gen. William Crozier, chief of ordnance of the army. The regular troops have been equipped with arms and ammunition of the most improved design. The soldiers are all equipped with the new magazine rifle, the invention of an American officer, which is regarded as the most efficient weapon of its kind in existence. The new design of field artillery has also been issued, doing away with the type of field gun which has been in use for many years. Ammunition of high grade is being manufactured in sufficient quantity to meet all possible demands, and Uncle Sam is in very good shape to meet any form of trouble if trouble shows its head.

At the recent meeting of the Eighth District Publishers' League, it was decided to accept no more "Compimentary" tickets in return for advertising theatres and other public entertainments. The public is not aware of the fact, but it is very true that newspapers do about five or six dollars' worth of work and receive two tickets in return, the value of which is about $1.50. Henceforth, the newspapers of the Eighth District League will charge ten cents a line for such matter, and if the editors desire to go to the show they will pay their little fifty cents for a ticket. This is a splendid agreement, and the papers all over the state should adopt the same rule.

President Roosevelt is on a jaunt to Panama. He has been on more wild goose chases than all the other presidents combined. If some one would come along in an air ship and say, "Get in, Ted, and let's go to the moon," he would quickly accept the invitation and begin the journey. That Mr. Roosevelt is a good man and a good president, no one will deny, but unless he quite galloping over the entire face of the earth, and ocean as well, some assassin is going to plug him full of holes. It's all right to be a brave man, but one with enough good judgment to take care of himself is entitled to far more praise.

The country newspaper men would be mighty glad if the Louisville Times would resurrect that "Kentucky Editor" heading and assign a good man to the work. It furnished a cozy corner by which the country boys could keep in touch with one another, in this way preventing that drifting apart likely to occur in the long time between meetings of the Kentucky Press Association. It was not only enjoyed by the newspaper men, but greatly appreciated by the public.

Green Keller, of the Carlisle Mercury, says every candidate before the late primary was afraid to send out a card or circular without the union label on it. The country printers got none of the work, but next year when the hard work of the campaign is to be done free the country editor will be expected to do it. The country newspapers are in a position to keep hands off if they want to.

The recent election, and especially the primary, has more fully proven the Australian ballot system a failure in every sense of the word. Let us return to the old fashioned viva voce method, where a man must walk up and sing out his choice. While the old way was by no means perfect, yet it was far better than the present method of voting.

President Roosevelt has again shown his good, honest sense by dismissing from the Army a battalion of negro troops who created a disturbance in one of the Western cities. Some colored troops make good soldiers, but, as a rule, the placing of brass buttons on Rastus makes a fool of him.

Louisville voted an immense amount of money for a new sewer system. If the new plant will only carry off the Louisville brand of politics, together with some of her politicians, the city will soon forge to the front in a great many ways.

The Government Printing Office turned out 5,000,000 copies of congressional speeches during the recent campaign. We'll wager our stack of blue chips that not five of the number were read.

Those explorers, who recently returned from a hunt for the North Pole, ran out of food and were forced to eat dogs. In commenting thereon, they intimate it made a dog on ice diet.

The Record office has just received a line of handsome samples of engraved work. Let us order for you and save you money.

In Memoriam.

In the death of Henry Clay Jennings, which occurred October the 25th, 1906, one of the truest and noblest of God's noblemen was removed from this stage of life. It was the fortune and pleasure of the writer to have known him almost all of his life and during that time each succeeding year from the beginning of this acquaintance brought to mind some new trait of nobility which stamped him a man of honesty and integrity, whose life was as beautiful as it was gentle and who upon all occasions brought sunlight into the dark places of the lives of those with whom he came in contact. Early in life, when just beginning the school boy days, when barely out of kilts and on the threshold of the knee-trousers period, while a class-mate and chum of his only son, Bradford, the writer met him in his own home and before that day had drawn to a close he had found a warm spot in that boy's heart which will remain forever. The acquaintance begun so many years ago, soon ripened into a friendship which grew stronger on the part of each as the years rolled by, and although they were apart during the last few years, yet that friendship, I am sure on his part, was as ever at the time of his death and I know that it is embalmed in my memory so sacredly that it will never be effaced by time or eternity.

A Christian he was in every sense of the word—aye in the highest sense. Not alone by profession, but by his every day life. His every step was in the path of right and all who learned to know him were made better by the knowing.

He was well-versed in the highest and purest literature. Often and often have I sat at his feet and listened in wonder as he would quote page after page from the different plays of Shakespeare. His mind was as fertile as his judgment was true. No better friend ever breathed, and those who were fortunate enough to secure that friendship, had his aid and affection at all times.

As years brought the writer to manhood's estate, this friendly affection grew even stronger between the two, and whenever in trouble or doubt it was a pleasure to seek and receive his advice, which always proved to be right. A life so grand and exquisite in its beauty, cannot but be very greatly missed in the community in which he lived and the loss of it will leave a vacant chair in the family circle which can never be filled. This character needs no monument, for his life has built one that will be imperishable. May the loving Father, whose teachings he so faithfully followed, touch the wounded hearts of the bereaved family making them to realize that he has only gone before; and may the loving compassion which sustained him through all the trials and vicissitudes of life be their guide and comforter all through this earthly pilgrimage and finally into the fair still fields of Eternity, the home he has now entered, is the wish of one who loved him in life, and who reverently honors him in death. * *

In Memoriam.

Mrs Fayette Brooks died at her home in Lexington, Thursday morning, November 8th, 1906. The funeral services were held at Maple Grove Cemetery, (Nicholasville) Friday morning, and the concourse of people present was a testimonial of the many friends of the deceased. After a portion of Scripture was read and a song by the quartette, the body was placed beside other loved ones to await the resurrection morn.

Mrs Brooks, formerly Miss Annie Fain, was born in Jessamine county, near Nicholasville, where many years of her life were spent. She resided in Garrard county, near Bryantville, for two years, but lived in Lexington at the time of her death. She is survived by her beloved husband and nine children; Mr John Brooks, of Lexington, Mr Herbert Brooks, of Bryantville, Mr John Wood, of Hanly, Ky., Misses Essie, Mary Olive, Eunice and Beatrice Brooks and Mr Luther Brooks, of Lexington. For years she had not been free from pain, but her sufferings were borne with fortitude and patience, and her self-forgetfulness and thought for others kept her from her couch for years. Her life was a beautiful rounded one, with love and charity for all, and her work for her church and society will long be remembered, many jewels adorning her crown in the here-after for the good she has done. In her last hours here on earth, her faith and trust in her Heavenly Father were beautiful, and while some had misunderstood her through life, she freely forgave and died triumphant, realizing that, "The Blood of Christ cleanseth from all sin."

The bereaved relatives of the deceased have the sympathy of this community in their affliction. Mrs. Brooks' memory with her many friends here will remain fragrant forever.

A Loving and Devoted One.

If not, a change would be beneficial perhaps. A visit to the Southwest will open your eyes. Out in Oklahoma the last big land opening is soon to take place; farms are still very cheap in Western Arkansas, Northern Louisiana and the Gulf Coast or Texas. Let us give you full information about these sections. You will want to see them after you have examined our illustrated literature.

the price lists of the lumber men, and note the enormous prices now asked for every species of lumber, let him consider then that these prices are very low in comparison with those which will prevail ten fifteen years hence, and the still higher "famine prices" which are to follow for five or six decades as the result of the exhaustion of our natural forests. Then let him figure whether any better or safe investment can be made, to prepare either an endowment for his old age or a legacy for his children, than in planting five, fifteen, twenty-five, fifty or a hundred acres of land with timber trees. A thousand dollars an acre is not too much to anticipate, fifty years hence, from a wisely planned, well cared for tract of timber. Meanwhile an adjoining ten acres tract

AMUSEMENT OF THE RURALITE.

Village Had Game Even More Fascinating Than "Bridge."

"What is the principal amusement in your suburb—bridge?"

"I should say not. We have a game far more fascinating and continuous. For want of a better name we call it hunt-the-clothes. You see, we all employ the same washerwoman, and when the week's wash is taken home we all begin to guess whose clothes have fallen to our lot and then we start out to hunt our own. It is intensely interesting.

"Why, last week that swell bachelor, Mr. Singleton, was two days finding whose corset-cover had been sent home in his wash, and a day and a half longer locating the shirt he missed.

"With the whole neighborhood engaged in this game from Wednesday noon to Saturday night, we really need no other amusement and are glad of a few days to rest and revel in the possession of our own garments."

Perils that Surround Great Men.

Baron Hubner went one evening to call upon President Thiers, who was then at the head of the French republic. The baron found the door of the house open and walked upstairs. In the dim light a man crept stealthily toward him. Knowing that the president went in fear of his life and, unwilling to die a martyr in a cause not his own, the baron hurriedly explained: "I am not M. Thiers." "I know that you are not M. Thiers," answered the mysterious stranger, "but I want to know who you are." Before answering the baron insisted upon knowing the identity of his companion. "Oh, I am M. Thiers' butler," was the answer. Hubner declared himself. "Ah!" said the butler, with a sigh of relief, "I have your name first on the list of visitors." Each had taken the other for an assassin.

Philanthropic Sparrows.

For several days four or five sparrows had visited a certain place on the roof near my window. They always brought food for another little fellow, who never tried a flight from the spot. The visiting sparrows never came empty-billed. They would drop tiny morsels of food near the little sparrow. When it began to eat the crumbs the others set up a great chirping and then flew away.

After watching this for a few days I went out on the roof and approached the lone bird. It did not flutter away from me, and made no resistance when I picked it up.

The sparrow was blind. Its eyes were covered with a milklike film.—Outing Magazine.

To My Patrons.

Having decided to abandon the practice of Denistry here and, remove to another climate, I take this method of asking those indebted to me to please call and settle at once. I will leave within the next few weeks, and it is absolutely necessary for all outstanding accounts to be paid at once.

I want to thank my friends for the very generous patronage I have enjoyed during the past four years, and express my regret that it becomes necessary for me to give it up.

Very respectfully,

S. Chris Faris,

Dentist.

P. S. All unpaid accounts will have to be placed in the hands of an attorney for collection when I leave.
